

Euromed Heritage<sup>4</sup> (2008-2012), a process for re-appropriation

With a budget of 17 million euros allocated through the European Neighbourhood and Partnership Instrument (ENPI), Euromed Heritage<sup>4</sup> puts appropriation by the local populations of their cultural heritage at the core of its actions.

This objective has been defined in response to the Strategy for the development of Euro-Mediterranean Heritage: priorities from Mediterranean countries (2007-2013), to which Partner countries (Algeria, Egypt, Israel, Jordan, Lebanon, Morocco, Palestinian Authority, Syria and Tunisia) have contributed and confirmed their commitment.

Euromed Heritage<sup>4</sup> is about:

- multi-disciplinary cooperation
- research and good practices
- training and networking
- actions to stimulate and reinforce social and economic impacts
- agency of local groups in the valorisation and appropriation of their heritage
- improvement of the institutional and legislative frameworks surrounding cultural heritage among Mediterranean authorities.

Regional Monitoring and Support Unit – RMSU

A Regional Monitoring and Support Unit, in collaboration with the European Commission, provides technical support to projects and beneficiaries from Mediterranean Partner countries, assuring the achievement of Euromed Heritage<sup>4</sup> Programme's goals.

The RMSU is supported by an international consortium with a strong know-how in cultural heritage issues. This includes Hydea S.r.l. (Italy), the International Council of Monuments and Sites (ICOMOS-International), Agriconsulting Europe S.A. (Belgium), Culture Lab (Belgium) and the London Metropolitan University (United Kingdom).

Euromed Heritage, a worthy perspective on cultural heritage

The regional programme Euromed Heritage offers a framework for exchanges of experience, channels for disseminating best practices, and new perspectives for the development of the cultural institutional environment at national and regional levels.

Created in the wake of the Barcelona Declaration in 1995, the Euromed Heritage Programme has rallied through its various phases conservation experts, heritage institutions, administrations and civil society actors from countries of the Mediterranean region. Together, these have rediscovered and shared their cultural heritage.

Each phase builds upon the experiences and results of the former, with a marked progression in the methodology and approach it stipulates.

Euromed Heritage I aimed at the creation of heritage inventories and facilitation of networking between museums and other cultural institutions.

Euromed Heritage II and III focused on the increasing of Mediterranean countries' capacities in managing and developing their cultural heritage with a special attention on intangible heritage.
